LIVESAY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Preface

The material in this record has been obtained from many sources. The Reference^(S) of historical back ground have been given in connection with the persons it refers to.

The record is not meant for the scholar, but to the individuals who have a real interest in knowing something of their forefathers, that ^{feel} they may* a closer connection with them. Little stories have been included which have come to me , in order to give an insight as to the life and character of the individuals. Any such stories would be welcomed to enrich the content.

Any corrections and additions would be most welcomed .

To those who have given of their time and information, I extend my sincere thanks, and wish to make specific acknowledgement to: Dr. Harry E. Handley, Miss Rachel McClintic, Mrs. Lakie Livesay, Mr. Harry C. Livesay, Mrs. C.P. Livesay, Mr. Lacy R. Livesay, Mrs. Claude R. Byrom, Mrs. D. E. McPeters, Mr. Edward R. Livesay, Mr. James J. Livesay, Mr. Ralph E. Mason and any others who I may have neglected to name. ^{I acknowledge also} To the courteous assistance of the ^{Personel} of the Library of Lewisburg; and the Courthouses of Greenbrier Co., Pocohontas Co, Alleghany Co., and Rockingham Co.

THE LIVESAYS OF GREENBRIER COUNTY W. VIRGINIA

This article cannot rightfully be called a history of the Livesay Family since a history is made up of accurate facts obtained by long years of research and study. These pages therefore might better be called a record of the Livesays who originated from the Greenbrier County area.

You will note that this record is incomplete, and will have to be revised from time to time as more information is obtained. We would like to gain a knowledge of their forebears and locate their descendants. The former has presented a baffling problem. The early settlers did not seem to use middle names, in the first place, and they showed more interest in taming the wilderness and making provision for the future, than in keeping records of the past, moreover some of the records which were kept have been destroyed.

DELVING INTO THE MASS OF Old Documents available it was discovered that there were in early Virginia, several groups of Livesays who seem to be related but whose degree of relationship is not known at this time.

When the English settlers landed on the coast of Virginia and North Carolina, our ancestors were apparently called Livesay or Livesley interchangeable. In England at the same period we find the name Livesay as at present. The various Virginia lines became Livesay, though descendants of the eastern Pennsylvania settlers use the name Livezey. The ~~A~~ common spelling found in the records in Greenbrier County is Levisay. Spelling as a fixed art is quite modern. In the early records it is not unusual to find the same man's name ~~spelt~~ ^{Spelled} more than one way in the same official document.

Scotch-Irish and German settlers migrated from Pennsylvania to the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia between 1732 and 1745 ~~because of religious oppression~~, it is most likely some English were also in this group. Not long after they established homes in what now comprise the counties of Augusta, Rockingham, Page and others, the younger spirits among them ventured farther westward. These Counties are the first location of the Livesays of the Greenbrier Area. As early as 1750 and by 1761 at least 100 persons had crossed the Alleghany Mountains. " They were determined to live in Greenbrier in spite of the danger from the King's men and the Indians".

Greenbrier was named from the abundance of green briers lining the banks of the Greenbrier River. It is the third oldest county in West Virginia. The Act providing for the formation of the counties of Greenbrier, Rockbridge and Rockingham was passed by the General Assembly of Virginia in October 1777, however it did not become a law until March 1, 1778. Greenbrier was carved from Botetout and Montgomery Counties and embrace a territory of what is now in whole or part of the following counties in Virginia, Alleghany, Bath, In West Virginia counties of Braxton, Calhoun, Clay, Fayette, Gilmer, Jackson, Knawha, Mason, Monroe, Nicholas, Pocohonta Putman, Roane, Summers, Webster, Wirt and Wood. ^{and Greenbrier} The Western part of Virginia was called Greenbrier. This part refused to leave the Union so formed the State of West Virginia in 1863. Greenbrier County of today is made up of the foothills of the Alleghany Mountains with beautiful scenery as one looks over the hills of Blue Grass and in the fall of the beautiful autumn colors. The chief industries ^{are} were being stock raising, saw mills, blacksmith, grist mill and general farming. Lewisburg is the County Seat and the largest city.

(I) 1. GEORGE LIVESAY (I780- I865) son of Thomas and Margaret Livesay.
m. to MARY SWITZER (August 3, I786- Feb. 26, I857)
George was born of English parents (in Rockingham County, Va.) He came to Greenbrier County in his youth, and here married Mary Switzer about I804.

Mary was the daughter of John Switzer and Rebecca Fry. She came with her parents from Winchester, Va. to Mill Point or Little Levels, Pocohontas County about I790.

George and Mary lived in Richlands, Greenbrier County where he operated a Grist Mill and Blacksmith Shop located on Millican Creek near the ~~James River and Kanawha Turnpike~~. The community still goes by the name of Livesay's Mill. They resided in Greenbrier Co. until death and both are buried in a cemetery on the home farm, now owned by his son William R. Livesay. us RJE 60

Note :-- From John David Snyder Jr. said of his Grandfather George. Grandpa Livesay (was left an orphan when quite young.) He was apprenticed to a blacksmith to learn a trade. At the age of 21 years, he was given a new suit of clothes and $1.00 in money. A few years later he bought a small tract of land in the Richlands in Greenbrier Co. and put up a shop and worked at this trade for several years. As he accumulated money he bought more land and went into stock raising. Having finally acquired 1360 acres in one tract.

An interesting paragraph taken from an article in the Greenbrier Independence of April 28, 1960 by Martha P. Haislip, reads as follows;
Civil War Belies

It is the homes, rich in historical associations and warm with continuous occupation by descendants of pioneer families, that fascinate the visitor most often.
That such a peaceful setting as occupied by ~~Hartland~~ Shawnee Farm should have been the scene of such tragic happenings seems unbelievable. But it was here that the Clendennin massacre occurred.
Chief Cornstalk and a band of Shawnees arrived, apparently with peaceful intent, and were kindly received. After they had dined they killed 50 of the settlement's white men, ransacked and burned many cabins and

LIVESAY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

A News paper clipping of unknown author or date, but evidently some one who roomed with the Livesays. This must have been the second wife as the date mentioned is not that of the First wife. The date of death of the second wife has not yet been learnt.

I cannot avoid giving expression to the feeling of sadness and sorrow on account of the announcement of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Livesay, wife of William R. Livesay of the Richlands, in this county, on the 26th ult. I regarded her as a particular friend.

For three years and a half I boarded at the elegant home of her and her generous husband, and had the opportunity of knowing her intimately, and of sharing the large hearted hospitality which she dispensed with more than common profusion and courtesy.

Truly, kindness was a prominent characteristic of her nature; and she extended it unremittingly to all who were fortunate to belong in any way to her own household; and she did not stop there, but to all over whom she had any care, whether neighbor, friend or stranger, all shared her sympathy and kindness when any sort of necessity required assistance.

- (2) 8. MALINDA LIVESAY (1819- 1907) daughter of Goerge and Mary " Polly" (Switzer) Livesay. m. 14 FEB 1839 to ACHILLES RODGERS (12 APR 1811 - 5 DEC 1865)

He was a brother of John Rodgers, husband of her sister Elizabeth. He introduced high grade stock into Greenbrier County. He was killed in the explosion of the boiler on a river boat on which he was a passenger on the Ohio River. He and his wife lived on a portion of the Rodgers Homestead.

After his death Malinda brought her sister Lucinda, wife of Col. John Snyder, to live with her. Eventually John Snyder Jr. and his family came to live with the two old ladies. At her death Malinda willed her farm to the children of John Snyder Jr. It was sold to John Simms.

Charles

John Rodgers, husband of Elizabeth Livesay and his family lived on the eastern portion of the Rodgers Homestead which is still in 1946 held by the descendents of John Rodgers. The pioneer who located there in 1772. It is called Hartland.

Dr. Livesay was 76 yrs. when he died. He was born in Greenbrier Co. W. Va. He received his general education in the University of Virginia and Columbia College, N.Y. His Medical Education was in the University of Pennsylvania. He came to Gallipolis, Ohio in 1848, and began the practice of his profession, and his practice soon became a very lucrative one.

At the breaking out of war in 1861, Dr. Livesay took charge of the military hospital established in Gallipolis, donating his services for half a year, after which he was appointed chief physician and placed in charge of the hospital, by the Government, which position he occupied until the close of the war. Subsequently he removed to Chicago and remained there until after the great fire, a drug store in which the doctor was interested having been burned. After this he returned to Gallipolis, where he remained a few months before coming to Iron-ton in 1873. Since then he has been engaged in the general practice of medicine in this city. He has always been ranked as a physician of great ability, and his council was desired by the other physicians of the city.

Dr. Livesay was one of the first families of Virginia, was born near Lewisburg W. Va. He was of sterling integrity and a high sense of honor. He was a noble looking man with taste for the good, beautiful and artistic. He was very cultured outside of his profession and a most agreeable companion.

SECOND GENERATION

- (2) 1. SABINA "SIBBIE" LIVESAY (1810- 1874) daughter of Wm. Fountain and Mary (Handley) Livesay . m. Dec. 3, 1833 to ANDREW ERWIN RENICK (1809- July 3, 1852) They lived near Columbus , Missouri, as a prominent farmer and stockman. He was a son of Robert and Mary (Hamilton) Renick, daughter of Major Andrew Hamilton of Blue Sulphur Springs, Greenbrier Co. Va.

Andrew Erwin Renick was born in Ohio. He went to Virginia a short time before moving to Missouri in 1830. He settled in Lafayette Co. near Wellington, Mo. He was living on this farm when he married Sabina Livesay. A few years later he sold this farm and bought one north of Columbus, astride the Johnson- Lafayette Co. line. He became a prominent feeder and dealer in cattle, driving herds to market far as Cincinnati, Ohio, swimming the cattle across the Missouri River near Lexington, and the Mississippi on the way.

A contract he had with the Government during the Mexican War to furnish beef to the army netted him a large sum.

While driving a herd of cattle to the St. Louis market with his 15 yr. old son, Robert F., as his only helper, he became a victim of Cholera at St. Charles, Missouri and was buried there. His son completed the drive and sale of the cattle. Returning alone leading his father's horse the way he had come. He was paid in Greenbacks which he carried in a money belt. When asked by people along the road what he had done with the money received for the cattle he replied that he had been paid by check, thus reducing the possibility of being robbed. The money became wet in crossing the rivers and was spread out to dry by his mother when he reached home.

Andrew's wife Sibbie was born in Greenbrier Co. Va. and came to Missouri with her parents in 1833. She was buried at Mt. Tabor Cemetery east and south of Odessa, Missouri.

" William was 9 yrs. old when he moved with his parents from White Sulphur Springs, Va. (Now W. Va.) to Missouri. The family located on a farm 2 miles south and 1 mile east of Napoleon, a small landing town for boats on the Mo. River. His parents remained on this farm the rest of their lives. Bill Livesay, as he was called became a " Plainman" and a "49er One or more trips were made in company with W. L. Hickman, the author of " History of Jackson Co. Missouri 1920".

" At the outbreak of the Civil War he was employed by the Government, hauling provisions out west to army posts. He made 24 trips across the plains. All of his children were born on a 260 acre farm in the north-east corner of Jackson CO., Mo. where he lived until 1883. The Missouri Pacific depot, LEVASY, was located on a plot in the north west corner of this farm which he donated to the railroad. Although the station was named for the donor the name was spelled phonetically by the railroaders. He sold this farm and bought one of 149 acres 4 miles east of Independence, the county seat of Jackson, Co. Mo. to which the family moved Feb. 22, 1883. He died in 1893 after which the farm was sold.

" Nancy Ann was the daughter of David Ward and sister of Dr. William Ward Husband of Sarah Livesay Ward. Her mother was Nancy Sanders Holman, the 2nd. wife of her father, David Ward, he was one of the three named to select the county seat when, " by an act of the General Assembly approved Dec. 15, 1826 Jackson Co. was raised to the status of an independent county". At that time the rich prairies were considered useless and following a survey of the county for several weeks, the men decided on a thickly wooded hill near the famous " Public Springs" as being near the center of the inhabitable part of the county. This spot which was to become the public square of Independence, was at that time part of the Old Indian Trail from Fort Osage which later became known as the Santa Fe Trail, David Ward's 1st. wife was Nancy J. Mitchell.

" After David Ward died his wife Nancy Sanders (Holman) Ward, married Major Saunders. She was married from the home of Dr. William Ward and Sarah Livesay, her sister-in-law where she lived after her husband's death. She was a school teacher. Had attended Chapel Hill College, south east of Oak Grove. She later attended Ladies College, Fulton, Mo.
